

PSS Environmental Management System

PSS's business

PSS creates business value for clients and solves business problems through integrated solutions and services to a broad client base. We provide virtually all types of data processing, space and labor intensive services that our clients do not find practical to handle themselves. Our diverse production resources are critical to controlling costs and successfully dealing with peaks and valley inherent in the markets we serve.

PSS's environmental management system

To identify and effectively manage the potential environmental impact of PSS's operations, PSS established and has maintained an environmental management system (EMS). It is a vital element in the company's efforts to achieve results consistent with environmental leadership.

Corporate policy and instructions

PSS's environmental policy provides the strategic framework for the company's environmental management system and environmental affairs objectives. These objectives address areas such as workplace safety, the conservation of energy and other natural resources, environmental protection.

Responsibilities and integration

PSS's EMS involves PSS employees across all of its business units in the company's commitment to leadership in environmental affairs. Its structure and programs are designed to integrate environmental considerations throughout the company's operations.

PSS's environmental committee is responsible for establishing the company's environmental affairs strategy, the EMS requirements, and for monitoring its implementation.

Within PSS our employees serve as team leaders for environmental affairs. This ensures that our employees coordinate with other functions on interrelated activities affecting environmental issues and programs.

PSS leadership is responsible for the safety and environmental performance of our organization. All employees are required to comply with environmental laws and with PSS's own environmental, health and safety programs. Environmental performance and programs are reviewed by the PSS Environmental committee.

Environmental training

To ensure that PSS employees carry out their duties in as environmentally responsible a manner as possible PSS provides all employees with environmental awareness training on environmental issues and provides task-specific training to those employees whose jobs are associate with significant environmental aspects.

Monitoring and measuring effective implementation of the EMS

To ensure effective operation of the IEMS, PSS documents the procedures of its IEMS and keeps records of the outcomes of the IEMS processes.
